

OUR CANDIDATES.

The Miner will give under this head biographical sketches of the prominent candidates of the various parties, and continue these sketches in each subsequent issue, previous to election.

O. D. M. Gaddis.

The choice of the republican party for Assemblyman, is one of the rustling business men of Kingman. He is always on the go, and when elected to represent Mohave county, he will make things hum at Phoenix, and anything needed in the territorial legislature for the benefit of his county, will receive his prompt, careful and effectual attention. No brother Assemblyman will dare to oppose our alphabetic friend's demands, his expressed wish and determination will become law, and Mohave county will be the great gainer by the strong personality and magnetism of O. D. M. Gaddis.

Mr. Gaddis was born in Georgia, in 1859, brought up on a farm, and received a thorough education at the North Georgia Agricultural and Military College, and graduated from the Kentucky University. He entered the United States Internal Revenue Service in 1880, filling the important positions of Storekeeper, and Gauger, Deputy U. S. Marshall and Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue. When Grover Cleveland took the helm of state, our candidate resigned, well knowing that Grover was laboring under the same hallucinations as Gen. Jackson did, namely, "that to the victors belong the spoils," and to evade a graceful, but effectual bounce, O. D. M. Gaddis gracefully resigned. After his occupation was gone, he became a schoolmaster, teaching the young idea how to add columns, subtract and divide and all these things he accomplished at the Commercial College of Florida.

In 1886 he bought a first-class round trip ticket to California, and finding the coast to his liking he sold his return ticket at an advantageous rate and followed the art of bookkeeping on the improved double entry plan.

In 1891 Mr. Gaddis accepted an engagement from Beecher & Co. and remained with them until entering business on his own account. He is a popular, successful merchant, well liked for his probity and enterprise.

He was also Clerk of the District Court of the Fourth Judicial District of Arizona, and his numerous friends will not cease to work and vote for him until they have successfully returned him Assemblyman at the coming election.

James Rosborough

Is one of the best known and most popular men of Mohave county. He was elected to the office of Sheriff in 1892, defeating honest Harvey Hubbs, the democratic nominee, who numbers among his friends almost every man in the county, and this success at the polls is evidence that "Jim," as he is familiarly called by his many friends, is the right man in the right place. He has served the people of Mohave county well. His office has been conducted faithfully and economically, and when republicans looked around for a man to serve the county for the next term, Rosborough was chosen, for no man had the courage to come before the convention to contest his re-nomination. Mr. Rosborough is a fearless, brave man, honest as the day is long, congenial and beloved by men of all parties.

He was born in the town of Aylmer, Canada, December 25th, 1844, and when a mere boy, scarcely seventeen years old, he offered his services to the U. S. government: enlisting in September, 1861, in Battery B, 1st Ohio Artillery, and participated in many battles, fought for the cause of liberty and the defense of Old Glory. He served through the entire war and with his blood shed for the land of his adoption, he sealed his love for the United States.

An instinct of adventure and a desire to better his condition, led him to the golden state at the close of the war, where he followed the plough, delved in the mountains for the golden nuggets. He was at White Pine, Nevada, during the mining excitement there, and went to the Idaho mines, working with the pick and pan in search of the glittering metal. Arizona attracted his attention in 1875, and a citizen of this county he has been ever since. He is closely connected with all the different industries of this country. He has his mining claims at White Hills, at Lost Basin and Music mountain, and some day we hope to chronicle the fact that Jim has sold one of his mines at a fabulous price. Every man, woman and child would rejoice with him in such good luck.

Mr. Rosborough always made close connections when driving stage, which occupation he followed until 1882, and such punctuality has always been his maxim in all pursuits of life. "True to trust" is his motto. He lived at Hackberry from 1883 until his election as Sheriff, and is now the owner of a beautiful home at Kingman.

Mr. Rosborough is a hale fellow well met, a good officer, good citizen and a true friend.

Kean St. Charles

Is the choice of the populists of this county for Councilman. It was a herculean job to find some nincompoop to accept of this honor, but latent talent and a monstrous ambition prompted our friend Kean to accept the nomination and to demonstrate to his admiring fellow citizens of what elegant stuff the grey matter in his lilliputian head is composed of. Besides being a populist leader, a distinction that will be engraved on the grave stone of his ambition and of his last earthly home, the gentleman has the proud honor of being the Deus ex machina, the proud proprietor of an obnoxious "so-called" newspaper, The Mineral Wealth. This paper is principally distinguished by the nausea it creates in the stomachs of its few subscribers who screw up courage enough to read the editorials replete with billingsgate and worthy of a guttersnipe. Otherwise the so-called newspaper has no merit excepting perhaps its typographical portion.

Our friend is yet a young man, but we fear he will know no more if he should live to be as old as Methusalem. West Virginia had some thirty odd years ago, the honor of producing this populistic Dennis Kearney, and may be deprived of statehood by this egregious mistake.

Kean St. Charles is bound to be elected to stay at home, and we regret to state that Kingmanites will have to bear this infliction.

J. N. Cohenour

Was nominated by the republican convention for Recorder, and is busy now interviewing the voters of all political persuasions, advocating his election and by his courtesy towards his competitors for the office making many friends.

Mr. Cohenour was born in Whiteside county, Ill., in 1858, where he grew to manhood.

He passed an apprenticeship as carpenter, which trade he has successfully followed for ten years.

In 1881 he left Illinois going to N. W. Mexico, finally reaching this Territory in 1883. He engaged in mercantile business at Peach Springs, making a financial success of the same, and for three years had charge of the railroad car shops at Williams to the entire satisfaction of the officers of the A. & P. R. R. Wherever Mr. Cohenour has lived he made numerous friends by his uprightness, his honesty and his desire to help his fellow men. Mr. Cohenour's word is his bond, and he never goes back on a friend. He is a member of the Independent order of Odd Fellows and has repeatedly been elected to positions of trust and honor in his lodge.

When Mr. Rosborough was elected Sheriff of this county, he selected J. N. Cohenour as his chief deputy, and in this position he has demonstrated his ability and force of character.

Our friend Cohenour will use his best efforts to be elected to the responsible position of Recorder, and if victorious, he will fill the office with honor to himself and credit to the county.

Jonathan Logan

Is the nominee of the democratic party for the honorable and important office of Probate Judge, the position he has filled to the satisfaction of his many friends. He had no competitor at the convention, as all knew that it would be an impossibility to defeat him in a democratic caucus.

The Judge is ripe in years and honors for he has passed the three score years and ten. He was born in Wayne county, Mo., in 1821, moved with his parents to Arkansas when that State was yet a territory. He did all the chores on his father's farm when he was a boy, but at the same time worked hard intellectually and acquired a high school education. He studied law and was admitted to practice before the supreme court of Arkansas. He followed his profession for three years, but the intricacies of Blackstone, the close confinement to his office undermined his health, and when the great news of the gold discovery was spread over the country, he packed his grip and the year of 1849 greeted him on the golden shore of California. Like all the old argonauts, he forsook his profession and became a sturdy miner in Trinity county. He was successful and with the proceeds of his work he opened a general store there, which he successfully conducted until 1854.

Having made his pile he sold out and in 1856 went back to old Arkansas. But who has ever been on this coast cannot endure the humdrum life of the East, and in 1857 he again returned to California bringing a large drove of cattle. On this trip he met with many hairbreadth escapes passing through the Mountain Meadow massacre in Utah. In 1859 his fellow citizens elected him to the Senate of California from the joint Senatorial District comprising the counties of Colusa, Tehama and Shasta, where he was the author of many important bills, not the least being the geological bill, which made Professor Whitney the state geologist. He received many eulogies from the eastern and European press for the authorship of this important Bill.

He went to Mexico in the troublous times of Juarez, engaged in mining in Sonora and there erected a forty stamp mill. He sold out and obtained a large grant of land in that state. Being an American and in sympathy with republican institutions he was taken prisoner by the French invaders of Mexico and ordered to leave the country. He went back to Teluma and with the little money he had been able to save, again engaged in the stock business, which he followed for several years. He came to Mohave county in 1874, and has been closely identified with its history.

Judge Logan has passed an eventful life, he is a courteous gentleman of large legal ability, and his friends will spare no effort to elect him to the position he has so ably filled.

Anson H. Smith

Will contest the election for Councilman with his friends Lake and Koshland, the respective nominees of the democratic and republican parties. Anson H. Smith is running on an independent ticket, on the Free Coinage Platform, for which he has incessantly and intelligently labored in the columns of his widely read and well appreciated paper, the MOHAVE COUNTY MINER, the only representative newspaper of the county. Mr. Smith is a genial, popular gentleman. He is a self made man, highly esteemed by his many friends for his integrity, his fidelity to the interests of his county, and for his courtesy towards friends and foes. The columns of his MINER are never defiled by slang. They contain the news of the day; they are replete with the advantages this county has to offer to the investor. His MINER is not the mouthpiece of guttersnipes, nor the promulgator of personalities in fact, as we stated before, it is the only respectable paper of the county. Mr. Smith has many friends who, knowing his ability and his devotion to his country, will use all honorable endeavors to elect him to the office he is a candidate for.

Anson H. Smith when elected will represent all the people of the county, irrespective of party affiliations. He will be an intelligent representative of the population; the mining and stock interests will receive at his hands the adequate legislation their importance deserve. He will be a worthy successor to the Hon. Foster S. Dennis, whose presence in the last council shed lustre on the intelligence of the population of Mohave county that sent that gentleman to council halls.

Anson H. Smith is a young man with an old head. His advice is asked by his neighbors and friends, and as a rule is to the point and for the benefit of his friends.

He was born in Hornellsville, N. Y., in 1860, where, after finishing a common school education, he learned the printer's trade.

In 1879 he came to Mohave county where he mined, worked on mules and steered a six mule team. In 1882 he went back to his first love, the printer's art, and founded the MOHAVE COUNTY MINER and this journal has been in successful operation ever since. Mr. Smith has served this township as Justice of the Peace. He is an honored member of the Knights of Pythias. In fact Anson H. Smith is one of the integral parts of Kingman and Mohave county, and that he is appreciated by the people of the county will be demonstrated by the large vote he will receive at the ensuing election.
